

Ten Commitments of Tabor College Faculty

1. We commit to providing an academically excellent education to students.
2. We commit to active pursuit of the art and science of good teaching – using creativity, innovation, and tradition to engage students in both skill development and understanding.
3. We commit to emphasizing the integration of faith and learning in our scholarship and in our classroom teaching.
4. We commit to immersing ourselves in the current scholarship in our disciplines to provide added value to our students' classroom experience.
5. As Tabor College teaching faculty, we consider ourselves to be members of a rigorous, scholarly profession. So, we commit ourselves to regular juried or refereed journal/book publications, public conference lectures, and/or public performances in the areas of music, theater, and visual art as time and resources allow.
6. We commit to representing Tabor College in our areas of expertise in the broader culture through such things as popular publication, judging, performing, speaking, workshop presentations, and the like.
7. We commit to Christian compassion for our students in the common pursuit of knowledge, both in the classroom and through mentoring relationships.
8. We commit to participating in on-campus prospective college student recruitment activities as time and resources allow, but recognize that our first obligation is to students who have already matriculated.
9. We commit to participating in the development of innovative and creative approaches to student recruitment.
10. We commit to engaging in the activities and responsibilities of our departments and divisions, including service on academic and institutional committees.
